a complex laboratory within managed by skilled technicians, carries out systematic checks and checks on the whole production chain, from raw material to the finished product

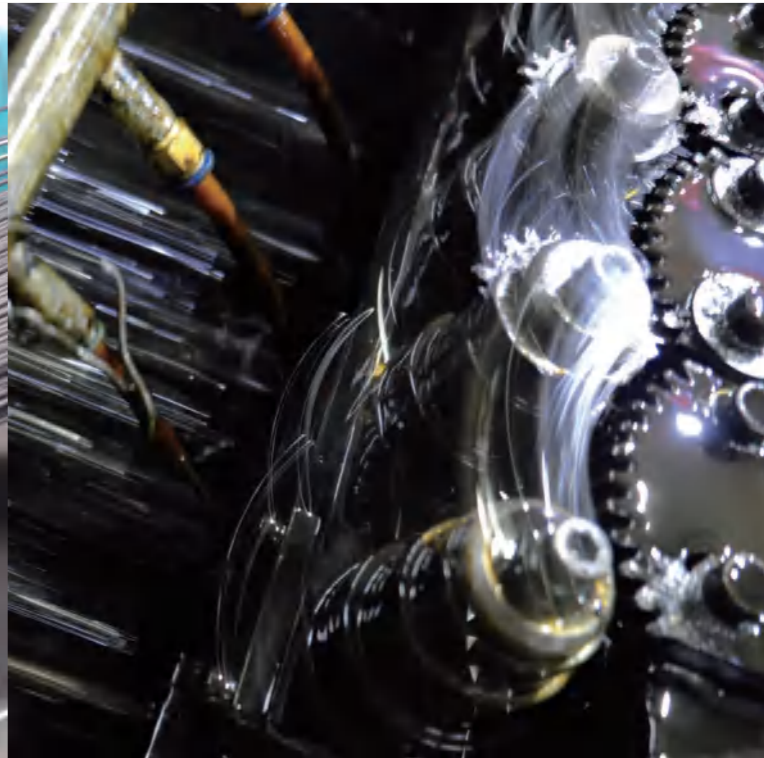

A wide-angle photograph of a large industrial factory. The ceiling is high with a complex network of steel beams and a prominent red overhead crane. The floor is filled with various pieces of machinery, including what appears to be a large green machine on the right that is emitting steam. In the center, there are several large coils of metal wire. A worker in a red jacket is visible in the middle ground. The lighting is bright, coming from large windows along the side walls.
